Camp rumors have it that within a month Gov. Charies H. Whitman, attended by his military staff and acting, in a way, as an escort to Col. Theodors Rooseveit, will invade this part of Texas and accomplish a review of the boys from home. This important rumor did not gain swift currency until last night, when it was reported in McAllen that the Hon. Robert Bacon, who was Ambassador to France in the Roosevelt Administration, was in San Antonio, bound hitherward, ostensibly on a visit to his son, Robert jr., who is prominently identified with the First Field Artillery.

Naturally, the martial politicians in Texas may be away off the real dope. But, as has been remarked the telegraph wires are open.

With their quarters but partially dried out after the deluge of the rain the night before, the New York troops were the recipients of another soaking from J. Texas Pluvius, last night. A beaming full moon looked down on the camps until 9.46 o'clock. Then banks of clouds came hurtling across the face of the moon from the direction of Mexico and 10 o'clock saw spurts of rain descending on the damp sleeping quarters of the belligerents from the Empire State. The New York soldiers brought the first rain for fourteen months into the Rio Grande Valley and the natives hold out the pleasing assurance that it may rain for a month longer.

any one else in New York.

She is Dr. S. Josephine Baker, director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene for the city Health Department. And this is the first thing she said to me when I saw her in her office at the corner of Centre and Walker streets:

"You may have an ideal summer couch for baby at small cost. Buy one of the cheap, old-fashioned grass hammocks, with big meshes. Sling it from corner to corner of your largest room. Put in it a stiff pillow, a hair pillow will not do, but you may substitute a blanket folded until it is a stiff pad. Lay baby on this. Bring together the edges of the hammock with bits of cord or ment has advocated, not to take your baby to amusement resorts, such as moving picture shows or children's hammock with bits of harmock with bits of cord or strong safety pins, so that baby will not roll out. There you have an ideal hot weather crib, for the air is circulating on all four sides of the little one.

"Keep the baby quiet. Let him sleep alone and let him sleep as much as possible. Do not allow soiled continue to remain on his heat or in othing to remain on his bed, or in the same room with him. "Nurse the baby, if it is a possible thing. The nursing baby is less like-iy to contract pollomyellits or any other disease. But the nursing moth-er must be particularly careful to re-or must be particularly careful to remember the rule o' Caim.

"Do not be afraid to take the baby to the milk station nearest you, to be weighed and examined. Babies suffering from poliomvelitis are not allowed at the stations. Doctors are there who can detect the disease at once, and who send home any baby suffering with it. There the baby is attended by a separate corps of doctors. It was a milk station doctor who first detected this present epidemic. Use milk furnishde by the stations, and keep it constantly covered and on ice after you bring it home."

Again Dr. Baker relterated the crux of her advice to the New York mother—"Keep your head!"
